HEYWOOD.

THE town of Heywood in the Township and Chapelry of Heap Parish, Union and County Court District of Bury, Hundred of Salford, Manchester Diocese, South Lancashire, is situated on the banks of the river Roach, 3 miles from Rochdale, 3 from Bury, 8 from Manchester, by road, ( $9\frac{1}{2}$  by rail),  $38\frac{1}{4}$  from Liverpool.

Of the many large and important towns around Manchester, Heywood is one which only of late years has rapidly grown from a straggling village into a town of commercial importance, and seat of cotton manufacture, and the various branches of industry connected with it.

The causes which have contributed to its rapid progress in common with all other modern towns in the great manufacturing district of Lancashire, have been an excellent supply of coal from mines in the adjoining townships, and a copious water-shed; these advantages, coupled with the great improvements in manufacturing machinery, and rapid communication by railway with the commercial centres of Manchester, Liverpool, &c.; aided by the untiring industry of an increasing population, have brought Heywood to be considered as one of the towns which have only become known during the present half century.

Makeant Mill, commenced by Sir R. Peel (grandfather of the present baronet), about 60 years ago, was the first and only manufactory in the town and neighbourhood. The population at that time consisting of a few hundred hand-loom fustian weavers and manufacturers, and others employed in agricultural pursuits. At present there are upwards of 60 firms engaged in the manufacture of cotton goods, employing the major portion of the working class. There are also establishments for the manufacture of power looms and other machinery, iron and brass founding, boiler making, and railway wagon building works, several manufacturing chemists, &c., &c.

The Lancashire & Yorkshire Railway Co.'s line affords facilities for the rapid conveyance of passengers, merchandise, and minerals to and from this hive of industry. A commodious station has been recently erected, the want of better accommodation in that respect having long been felt by the public generally.

A cut from the Rochdale canal also comes up to the town.

CHURCHES, CHAPELS, &amp;c.

The Church of St. Luke occupies a central position in the town, fronting the Market place. It was erected in 1860 on the site of the old edifice, at a cost of £10,000, which had become inadequate for the wants of the greatly increased population. It is a noble stone structure, designed after the style of ecclesiastical architecture of the period of Edward III. The tower rises to the height of 188 feet, and contains an excellent peal of 8 bells. A fact in connection with its erection deserving of record, is the conduct of the scholars of the schools attached to the church, who in 1851 commenced a system of weekly contributions, which amounted to the handsome sum of £500 towards the building fund. The other portion of the cost was defrayed by the liberal donations of the gentry, manufacturers, and other inhabitants of the town and district. The benefice is a perpetual curacy of the annual value of £320, in the gift of the rector of Bury. The Rev. Thomas Ramsbottom, M.A., is vicar. The schools attached to the Church are in William street, under the superintendence of Mr. Wolstenholme, who has also established evening classes, attended by upwards of 400 persons of both sexes.

St. James' Church (off Bridge Street), is a substantial stone structure, built in 1837 at a cost of £4,200, defrayed partly by subscription, and partly by a grant from the Diocesan Society. The living is a perpetual curacy, held by the Rev. Augustus Conway.

The schools connected with St. James,' in St. James' place, are constructed to accommodate 400 children, and are superintended by Mr. Thomas Popple. There is also a branch school at Heady hill.

Services are also held in St. John's school-room, Hopwood,—a populous district in which it is proposed to erect a new Church.

The Independents have a handsome Church and Schools in York street, erected in 1869, at a cost of £6,300, constructed to seat 750 persons. The Rev. John Yonge is the minister, and of a small chapel at Bamford.

The Wesleyans have a large chapel in Market street, and others in Hopwood and Bamford.

The Methodist United Free Church, the Primitive Methodists, Baptists, Swedenborgians, and Unitarians, have each chapels in the town and neighbourhood.

There is a Roman Catholic Chapel in Dawson street, the Rev. Arthur McCann, priest.

There are large Sunday Schools in connection with the several dissenting places of worship, and Day Schools attached to the Methodist Free Church, Swedenborgians, and Roman Catholics.

The Mechanics' Institution is a commodious building, containing a library and news room, also a large room for public meetings, concerts, and an excellent day school.

The Conservative Club Rooms recently erected in York street, contains news and billiard rooms, and a large room for public assemblies, &c.

The Reform Club is also in York street, and the Working Men's Club in Church street.

The Cemetery is situated about two miles from the town, in the midst of a beautiful country on the road to Rochdale.

An excellent newspaper, the Heywood Advertiser, established in 1855, is published here by Mr. John Heywood every Friday.

Heywood hall, the ancient seat of the Heywoods, one of the oldest families in the parish, is known as the birthplace of Peter Heywood, the zealous Lancashire magistrate, who contributed to the discovery of the conspirators implicated in the Gunpowder treason. Stowe in his survey of London, says of Mr. Heywood—"that in the late built church of St. James', Aldersgate, is one flat stone in the chancel, laid over Peter Heiwood, that deceased November 2nd, 1701, youngest son of Peter Heiwood, of Heywood, in the County Palatine of Lancashire, who apprehended Guy Faux with his dark lanthorn; and for his zealous prosecution of the Papists, as Justice of the Peace, was stabbed in Westminster Hall by a Dominican Friar. A. D., 1640."

The affairs of the town are managed by a Local Board, who have their offices at 12, York street. Mr. John Banks is Clerk to the Board.

The Waterworks Co.'s Office is in Queen street. Their reservoirs are situated at Nayden, and contain an ample supply of water for the town in all seasons. Mr. Wescoe is Manager and Secretary.

Rateable value of Heywood District, £74,133 11s. 0d. The population of the town is estimated at about 23,000.
