BURY,

WITH THE TOWNSHIPS AND VILLAGES OF BIRTLE, BLACKFORD BRIDGE, ELTON, FISHPOOL, GIGG, HEAP BRIDGE, LIMEFIELD, LITTLEWOOD CROSS, PILSWORTH, TOTTINGTON-HIGHER-END, TOTTINGTON-LOWER-END, WALMERSLEY, WALSHAW, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

BURY is an important, populous, and thriving market town, parliamentary and municipal borough, and parish—the latter comprising the townships of BURY, COWPE LENCH, &c., ELTON, HEAP, MUSBURY, TOTTINGTON-HIGHER-END, TOTTINGTON-LOWER-END, and WALMERSLEY-CUM-SHUTTLEWORTH, and containing 24,320 acres. It is in the hundred of Salford, 195 miles N.N.W. from London, $7\frac{3}{4}$ N. from Manchester, 41 E.N.E. from Liverpool (by Manchester), 8 S. from Rawtenstall, 95 N. from Birmingham, $16\frac{1}{2}$ S. from Blackburn, $8\frac{1}{2}$ S. from Haslingden, $17\frac{1}{2}$ S. from Whalley, and 5 E. from Bolton; situated at the junction of the East Lancashire section and the main line of the Lancashire and Yorkshire railways, the company having two stations in the town, one being in Bolton street, and the other in Knowsley street. A branch line from Bury to Tottington, now worked by the above-mentioned company, was opened in November, 1882, proving of great advantage to the district through which it runs.

Bury is situated in a fertile valley, on the left bank of the river Irwell, which runs close to the west side of the town, and about two miles from the confluence of that stream with the Roach. The charter for the incorporation of the town was granted on the 9th of September, 1876, the first election of councillors taking place November 1st in the same year. The borough is divided into five wards, viz:—Church, Redvales, East, Moorside, and Elton. The corporation consists of the Mayor (George Horridge, Esq.), ten aldermen, and thirty councillors. The name of the place is derived from the Saxon word Byri, meaning a castle, a building of which character, and one of the twelve ancient baronial castles of Lancashire, stood in Castlecroft, near to the town, on the banks of the old course of the Irwell. Tradition says it suffered demolition, along with other castles in this country, by Cromwell's army, about 1644, but Leland, the historian, who visited the town about 1540, says it was then a ruin. Its site is only ascertained by vestiges of the foundations being occasionally dug up, the last being about 1875. The old cross, erected in 1559, was removed in 1818, for town improvements, from the market place, where it had always stood, the pillory and stocks being cleared away at the same time. A court baron was formerly held here by the agent of the Earl of Derby annually, in the first week in May; this is now obsolete. The county magistrates sit in petty sessions every Monday and Thursday. A borough bench of magistrates was created December 1st, 1877, which sits in petty sessions at the Court House. Bury is included in the tenth circuit of towns under the County Courts Act. This court is held on days fixed by the judge, in the Philips Hall, erected by R. N. Philips, Esq.

The Town Hall, erected by the Earl of Derby, is a handsome stone building, in the Italian style of architecture. The principal apartment is fifty-four feet by thirty-six, well finished, with circular ceiling, and is admirably constructed for the purposes of public meetings, assemblies, concerts, &c. The lower rooms are occupied as offices by the agent of the Earl of Derby. The police office, with lock-ups for prisoners, and also the magistrates' room, in which the petty sessions are held, form a portion of the Town Hall building, and adjoining is the Derby Hotel, erected by the late Earl of Derby, and corresponding in architecture therewith. This pile, together with the Athenaeum, erected by public subscription, form one side of Market street, between Fleet street and Haymarket street. The latter building is a flourishing institution, containing a lecture and exhibition hall, eighty-five feet by forty-three, a news room, forty-three feet by thirty, a library, class room and offices. There is also an armoury and drill-shed, estimated to have cost about £3,000. The drill hall is 108 feet 6 inches long by 69 feet 6 inches wide; the roof spans the whole width of the building, 69 feet, without a single pillar, and is formed on the lattice girder principle. The hall, the floor of which is asphalted and finished with a smooth surface, is a splendid room for public purposes, and is capable of holding from 5,000 to 6,000 people. The castellated Norman front of the building is in the style of the Cumberland walling, with as little ashlar as possible. The interior comprises guard and orderly rooms, sergeants' quarters, store rooms, and a well-lighted reading room. The right wing of the building contains the armoury. The architects were Messrs. Farrar and Styan, of Bury. The Corporation offices are in Bank street, and comprise the Council chamber, town clerk's offices, borough surveyor's offices, borough treasurer's office, committee room, &c. Branches of three banks are established in the town.

Bury was created a parliamentary borough by the Reform Bill of 1832, and sends one representative to Parliament, the Right Hon. Sir Henry James, being the present member. The manufactures comprise cottons and woollens—the latter being originally the staple—and calico printing and cotton bleaching and dyeing are carried on to a considerable extent in the town and vicinity. There are several large establishments for iron and brass founding, and extensive engineering, machine, and other works, together with several chemical works. The manufacture of felt hats is also a branch of some importance. Coal is obtained in abundance from some valuable mines, and the prolific supply of water from the several streams winding through and around the town, joined with its canal navigation and subsequently its railway advantages, combine to render Bury that which it is—a flourishing seat of manufactures. This town has, by the ingenuity of a few individuals, given birth to some valuable improvements in manufactures. John Kay, a native of this place, invented a new mode of throwing the shuttle; and Robert Kay, a son of his, invented a drop box, by which the weaver can at pleasure weave a fabric of various colours with the same facility as a common calico. But it was left to the enterprising firm at the head of which stood Mr. (afterwards Sir Robert) Peel to bring Bury into particular notice by the establishment of their extensive print works. Sir Robert for many years resided at Chamber Hall, in the immediate vicinity of Bury, and his son—the late celebrated and lamented statesman, at different times Premier—was born there. The gas and water works are now the property of the town council. Owing to the crowded state of the grave yards in the town, the Improvement Commissioners (the then governing body), laid out a plot of land as a cemetery, which was opened in May, 1869. It is a large, open space, and adjoins the high road from Manchester to Bury. The baths, in St. Mary's place, also belonging to the corporation, were erected in 1864. A new recreation ground, seven and a half acres in extent, facing Ainsworth road, Elton, the gift to the borough of Mr. H. Whitehead, was opened May 29th, 1886. The cost, including fencing, the erection of caretaker's house, and fitting up the place with swings and gymnastic apparatus, was about £6,500. A system of steam tramways has been established, connecting this town with Manchester, Heywood, Rochdale and other places. The town is now approached from the Elton side by a handsome stone bridge crossing the Irwell, opened 1st September, 1883, and superseding the old narrow structure, which had long been inadequate for the traffic. The present bridge consists of three arches, the centre being 31 feet span, and the other two 27 feet each. The cost was about £5,500, being jointly borne by the Salford hundred and the borough. The work was commenced July, 1882, and was carried on under the supervision of Mr. J. Cartwright, c.e. borough engineer, and Mr. W. Radford, bridgemaster, the contractors being Messrs. Newhouse & Wrigley, of Bury.

The parish church of St. Mary was rebuilt in 1780, upon the site of the ancient Gothic structure taken down in 1776, except the steeple, which latter was rebuilt, by subscription, in 1844. In 1870 it became an absolute necessity to again re-build it, with the exception of the steeple before mentioned, the present structure being a very handsome edifice, erected at a cost of about £27,000. The living, which is held by the Rev. Canon E. J. G. Hoinby, M.A., is a rectory, of the value of £1,937, in the presentation of the Earl of Derby. St. Paul's, Wash lane; St. John's, Stanley street; St. Thomas's, Rochdale road; Holy Trinity, Spring street; All Saints', at Elton; St. Peter's, Manchester road; St. Mark's, Freetown; and St. Stephen's, Bolton road, Elton, are the other places of worship under the Establishment. A list of the dissenting chapels and of the public and private schools will be found under their respective heads. A dispensary, a savings bank, and philanthropic and Bible societies are the other principal institutions in Bury. A new dispensary, a commodious building, with centre and two wings, has been erected on rising ground in Walmersley road. A market place was built in 1840 by the late Earl of Derby. Thursday is the chartered day for holding the market, but custom has adopted Saturday, and on that day it is well attended, and abundantly supplied with the usual marketable articles. Fairs: March 5th, May 3rd, and September 13th. According to the census returns for 1871, the entire parish of Bury contained 85,906 inhabitants, of which 32,611 were returned for the township. By the returns for 1881, the figures were—for the parish, 99,543; for the township, 39,285. The population of the parliamentary borough at the last-named period was 49,746, that of the municipal borough being 52,126. Total number of electors on the parliamentary register on January 1st, 1884, 7,463; the burgess roll at same date containing 9,381.

BIRTLE-CUM-BAMFORD is a scattered parish, containing 1,480 acres, in the parish of Bury, and hundred of Salford, situated between Bury and Middleton. The church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, was erected in 1845-6, at a cost of about £1,600. In 1887 a new vestry was added, at an expense of £100, defrayed by private subscription. The ecclesiastical district comprises the hamlet of Birtle, and portions of the townships of Bury, Heap, and Walmersley. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £150, in the gift of the rector of Middleton. The Wesleyan and United Methodists have each a chapel here. Cotton weaving and bleaching give employment to a number of hands. Population in 1871, 2,148, and in 1881, 2,265.

ELTON is a suburban township in the parish of Bury, containing manufacturing, calico printing, and bleaching establishments. There are also paper mills and several iron foundries, and coal is obtained within the township. The church of All Saints' is a neat structure, the living of which is a vicarage, of the annual value of £300, to which the rector of Bury presents. Population in 1871, 9,591, and in 1881, 11,947.

TOTTINGTON-HIGHER-END is a township in the parish of Bury, about one mile N. from Ramsbottom, and contains several manufactories. Population in 1871, 3,595, and in 1881, 3,926.

TOTTINGTON-LOWER-END is a township and chapelry in the parish, union, and county court district of Bury, from $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 miles from that town, and comprises the greater part of Ramsbottom and the villages of TOTTINGTON, HAWKSHAW LANE, & HOLCOMBE. The church, dedicated to St. Anne, is a plain edifice, consecrated in 1799; the living, a perpetual curacy, of the annual value of £300, is in the gift of the rector of Bury. Cotton spinning is carried on in the township to a large extent. Tottington is a station on the Lancashire and Yorkshire railway from Bury to Holcombe Brook. GREENMOUNT is a hamlet in this township, and is also a station on the above-mentioned railway. Acreage, 5,083. The township contained in 1871, 12,531, and in 1881, 16,598 inhabitants.

FISHPOOL and BLACKFORD BRIDGE are both situated on the road between Manchester and Bury.

HEAP BRIDGE, about half-a-mile from Bury, is situated on the Rochdale road. The extensive paper works of James Wrigley and Sons, Limited, are situated here.

LITTLEWOOD CROSS and LIMEFIELD are two small villages situated on the Walmersley road.

PILSWORTH, a township of 1,478 acres, parish of Middleton, Bury union and county court district, is 2 miles S.E. from Bury, and 4 N. from Middleton. There are extensive bleach and dye works in the township. Population in 1871, 386, and in 1881, 758.

At GIGG, about a mile from Bury, there are cotton and paper making establishments, and also dye works. The river Roach runs through this place.

WALMERSLEY is a village in the parish of and $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles N. from Bury, and in conjunction with Shuttleworth forms the township of Walmersley-cum-Shuttleworth. The latter place will be found given with Ramsbottom. Christ Church was first erected in 1838, but was entirely pulled down and the present edifice built in its place, which was consecrated by the late Bishop Fraser in September, 1883. The living is a vicarage, of the annual value of £270, in the patronage of five trustees. Walmersley House, the late residence of Miss E. Kay, was in 1885 presented by that lady to the Northern Counties Hospital for Incurables, and has been converted into a branch home for female patients. Population of the entire township of Walmersley-cum-Shuttleworth in 1871, 5,558, and in 1881, 5,519.
