

Progress update: 8th March 2024

We'd like to provide you an update on the works at Pilsworth South Landfill site. In our last communication on the 5th March 2024, we confirmed that we were deploying a temporary capping material over all of the exposed areas of waste on site.

The weather has been favourable and allowed us to progress the engineering well, with approximately half of the area now covered in temporary cap.

Unfortunately, the weather forecast for this weekend is for high winds and rain, which means we will be unable to safely and effectively carry out further works this weekend. This poor weather snap looks to ease on Monday when we intend to resume the works.

The Environment Agency have also approved the installation of a further 12 permanent gas extraction wells in this area, which will start drilling on Monday.

As previously stated, the site will remain closed to waste inputs until this work is completed, however we will continue to accept restoration material used to cover and stabilise the capping material.

We apologise for any inconvenience caused during these works, please be assured that we are fully committed to addressing these issues and working diligently to resolve them.
